Compass...

It's opening night for one of the most advertised and anticipated movies of the year. The 8PM showing at AMC Stonebriar starts in just a few minutes. The weird thing is the theater is not even half full. We keep thinking the high school kids will come rushing in before the movie starts and fill the remaining seats. That never happens. Instead the movie rolls to a half full theater. Praise God!! Why? Well this is the movie of the first book in the Golden Compass trilogy. The story portrays the church as an authority that takes advantages of everyone. And in the final book, the lead character kills God! So, why were we there? To hand out tracts of course. And also by seeing the movie we are better prepared to discuss it with other movie goers. When the movie ended Brad Aldrich and I handed out about 100 Golden Compass tracts to those that were at the movie. We are praying that movie attendance for this will be so poor that the producers will cancel plans to make the other two books into movies!

Witnessing at Grapevine Mills

Craig and I witnessed at the Grapevine Mills mall last Friday. We had several good conversations with people and shared the Gospel several times. We used the approach described in last weeks Bezeugen Blast of asking people why they celebrate Christmas. We talked to a catholic from the Philippines for some time about being saved by faith rather than works. We also had a good conversation with the manager of a kiosk who is a non-practicing Jew. As you wrap up your Christmas shopping may I encourage you to talk to the cashier, the people in line and others that you meet at the mall about the true meaning of Christmas. Many people you meet will say that Christmas is just a nice friendly time of the year or is good for the economy. We as Christians know the truth. It is about the birth of Christ, the savior of the world. Take a moment to share that truth with those you meet. Please email me and let me know your experiences as you share the meaning of Christmas with those you talk to.
